

HELP WANTED! TO TRANSFORM THE BUS.

Local bus service is an essential part of the Washington, D.C. area transportation system. Buses help people to get to jobs, school, medical appointments, run errands, and connect to rail and airports. Buses play a big role in addressing many of our region's most difficult challenges: traffic congestion, affordability and access to opportunity, the environment – including air quality.

Recent transportation innovations – such as Lyft, Uber, bikeshare, carshare, scooters, and others – as well as changes in people's travel habits mean that it's time to look at how local buses can work better for you and the region.

How can You Help?

Take a survey today. We want to hear how local bus service can help you, your family, and your neighborhood! Your feedback will be used to help your local bus become a better travel option.
